#LivinginB'ham

We understand that the British Culture and its traditions are different from yours, that's why we suggest you get the best out of this experience and try to approach British people with a positive attitude. On the other side, you may find that people in the UK are not familiar with your culture and will not understand your needs unless you explain them. Do not be afraid to tell teachers, your host family, or new friends if you have particular needs. If you tell people the reasons, they will understand much better, and they will surely enjoy finding out about the differences between our cultures.

England has always been inclusive with people of different nationalities. You will be in contact with different foreign languages, religions, eating habits, clothing, and so on.

Remember that Birmingham is the second largest city in England, it is generally a safe place to live. However, there can be problems in certain areas, so you should follow some sensible guidelines:

Student Home accommodation

- If you are accommodated in a student home, you will be assigned a tutor who will act as your supervisor and will live in the same premises.
- During your stay you will have to comply with the instruction of the tutor, otherwise measures will be taken that could lead, in the most serious cases, to early repatriation.
- The tutor is available 24/7 and their contact number will be provided to you.
- If you have written permission from your parent/guardians to travel independently in the city, you may do so, but you need to be at the student accommodation before 10pm and you need to inform your tutor about your whereabouts.
- If you DON'T have written permission from your parent/guardians to travel independently in the city, after your Class in College you need to report to International Office and outside the College you must be under the supervision of the tutor all time;
- If you are part of an organized group, you must comply with the instruction of your accompanying teacher and the College tutor all the time.
